

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

The present invention relates to a process for direct and selective synthesis of mono-N-substituted functionalized anilines by using alkylating agents selected from the class of organic carbonates, preferably of the 5 dialkyl, dibenzyl and diallyl types, in the presence of suitable catalysts that are chemically related to the class of aluminosilicates.